EASTER GREETINGS

from
ALICE STONE BLACKWELL.

The flowers of spring rise pure and sweet
Where seas of blood were shed;
The great sun rises all unchanged,
Though hosts of men lie dead.
Though clouds of battle smoke hang low,
And tears make dim our eyes,
Beyond the chaos and the strife
A new world yet shall rise,
The bells of Easter seem to say,
In music bright and clear:
"Rise, help to win the victory
O'er doubt, and grief, and

A. S. B.

'Tis weary watching wave
And yet the tide heaves
We climb, like corals, gray
That pave a pathway sun
We are driven back, for on
A newer strength to borrow
And where the vanguard came,
The rear shall rest tomorrow
—Gey.

I have a profound hope some day
Russia and the United States in friendly relations, working together to make both hemispheres more peaceful, more sistent with the demands of the Christian religion.

—Catherine Brezhnevsky, Dec. 3rd, 1944

The older I get the better I like being alive.
—Ernie Pyle.

Remember, whatever ought to be done can be done.
—Harriet Beecher Stowe.
