Dear Madame Mistral:

Thank you very much for your kind hospitality in Santa Barbara. My visit to you and our talk together was a very memorable experience. Thank you also for the gift of the books: I have been studying Spanish and Spanish poetry rather seriously lately.

I am sorry to say that nobody here knew anything about the copy of the speech you lost. I hope that you have found it in the meantime. Neither have I been able to locate any poems by Hermann Herre, only prose. But I shall try some second hand bookstores.

Please, give my best regards to Miss Salera. The letter she gave me to me I deposited in a box on State Street and it left Santa Barbara the same night.
