Madame Gabriele Mistral,
Office of the Consul-General of Chile,
Los Angeles, Calif., U.S.A.

Madame,

It is almost a year that a copy of my book, India : A Synthesis of Cultures, was sent to you by my publishers at my request. I have been looking forward to a word of comment from you all this time. It is my earnest hope that the book was received and that you have had an opportunity of glancing through it.

I have also in my file a copy of my letter of March 1, 1947, written to you in regard to a Spanish translation of my book, Manu : A Study in Hindu Social Thought. This letter also remains unacknowledged. If you received it, would you kindly tell me what chances there would be of having a Spanish translation made and published in South America? I am very eager that the South American Republics and India should come close together on the spiritual and cultural planes.

Very truly yours,

Kewal Motwani
