Dear Madam!

We come to you with a plea for your help.

After a personal interview with the Nobel-Institute at Stockholm in summer 1953 we are planning a survey on an international scale pertaining to bearers of the Nobel Prize.

With the request we approach a very select group of the intellectual elite who have received the highest honour the world has to bestow for scientific, literary or ethical accomplishment.

We ask you to consider that we can carry out this enquiry only if we receive your understanding response and benevolent support. We should be very grateful if you would kindly find the time to answer the enclosed questionnaire as fully as possible.

All your statements will of course be treated as a highly confidential matter; the questions are absolutely non-political and the replies will be accessible only to the two collaborators. Furthermore, each questionnaire bears merely a working symbol rather than a name. Evaluations will appear in the form of statistics.

An idea of the planned work can be gained from the enclosed pamphlet.

In hopes for your sympathetic assistance,
we remain gratefully and sincerely yours

H. Gesenius H. Gansau
