Miss Margot Schutt, Humanities Editor
The Johns Hopkins Press
Baltimore, Md.

Dear Miss Schutt:

Thank you for your nice letter of July 20th. I am enclosing the pages you asked for and hope these are now satisfactory for the printer. Since I took these directly from my copy, please send me the Xerox pages you have in order to complete my book.

Please make a note that on page 66 the first line should read "little fleeces of my flesh" instead of "little flesh of my flesh." My error!

Just in case Jack forgot to tell you, we had agreed to change left margin on all Gabriela's poetry so that no lines are indented, which they are, in the original. This way they will be consistent with the English version.

Also note that when I have indented the English (the only one that comes to mind is "Land of Absence") that too should be changed so that left margin has no indentation.

I'm getting the other material to you fast as I can.

It was so nice talking to you and thank you for being so helpful. I look forward to meeting you soon.

Sincerely,

Doris Dana
