Dear Professor Flores:

I have spoken to Doris Dana about our telephone conversation. Both she and I thoroughly appreciate your position of not wanting to commit yourself too deeply financially in advance of publication of the anthology. Therefore, as a compromise and, the definite understanding that this will establish no precedent, we are prepared to set a fee of $75 for the first 20,000 copies. A further permission fee of $75 will automatically become due at the time of printing for each further edition of 10,000 or less.

The above permission is given with the proviso that Miss Dana be given full right of approval of the translations to be included. I trust that the translator will be able to arrange to get together with Miss Dana on this. I shall await your confirmation of the above before sending you our usual letter of agreement.

With best wishes for the coming year,

Sincerely yours,

Joan Daves/dg
