Dear Doris:

We have consulted the Registro de Propiedad Intelectual in connection with the opinion of the Italian publisher you mention in your letter that works published in this country are considered of public domain in Italy.

I may inform you that the general principle of our copyright law is that copyright is established by recording it in the appropriate register. It endures for the life of the author and 50 years thereafter if transmitted by inheritance.

With respect to Italy, both countries signed and have ratified the Universal Copyright Convention; Chile in 1955 and Italy in 1957.

Article 2 of said Convention declares: "Published works of nationals of any Contracting State and works first published in that State shall enjoy in each other Contracting State the same protection as that other State accords to works of its nationals first published in its own territory".

* [Our opinion is that if the publication complies with all the conditions of the Conventions, the work published in Chile is also protected in Italy.

However in order to give a definite opinion we could have to know more details of the matter.

With best regards.

Sr. Raul Yrarrázaval L.
