Dear Sir:

In the fall of 1973 we are starting publication of a new children's literature magazine, called CRICKET, which will differ from existing children's periodicals in many ways. I am enclosing an Outline describing CRICKET.

Since we want to include mainly original contributions by the best children's authors, we would like to purchase first serial rights for some chapters of books, stories, or poems from anthologies you are planning to publish.

We know that your list of authors is an excellent one, and we believe that pre-publication of parts or chapters of any of your books in CRICKET would be mutually beneficial. This "preview" would certainly stimulate interest in such books among CRICKET readers and their friends.

Would you be able to send us either early proofs of catalogues, or manuscripts, or galleys, whatever suits you best, so that we could make selections? If you have anything for 6 - 10 year olds on hand right now, we would very much like to look at it for possible inclusion in CRICKET'S first issue.
