Dearest Emma,

I wrote you sometime ago on November 21st, to be exact, and have heard nothing from you. Did you receive my letter?

In that letter I asked you about the University of Israel's interest in publishing works by Gabriels, and asked if you had any idea who I should get in touch with. You wrote me about this ~~sometime~~ ago, but never told me whom I should contact about this matter.

What are you doing this summer? I am leaving May 21st for Greece on a vacation, and will be back the first of July. Perhaps we shall have the good fortune to have breakfast together on Constitution Square in Athens, as we did in 1958...

Let me hear from you, dear Emma, as I worry not having received an answer to my last letter. In the Autumn, I plan to be in Mexico on a work project, and in the meantime, will you be coming to New York at all?
