Dear Doris:

Re: Gabriela Mistral/Langston Hughes

As per enclosed letter, we have now the reversion of rights from Indiana University. Between Ober and ourselves, we worked out to have both translations and text reverted to the respective owners. I think this is all for the best, seeing how unsatisfactory Langston Hughes's translations were.

Just put this away with your files. And note that from hereon no one shall give permission for any further reprinting, partially or as a collection.

Whatever is happening to you? We have so many pending items, we sent so many reminder notes, that we are a bit worried about the lack of response. Do call and let us know that you are well, and show your face if possible.

I have had as house guest a giant version of Gigi (a big Welsh terrier) and we all enjoyed that visit very much.

Love.

Yours,

Joan
