Dear Doris:

I have just returned from my stay with Victoria Ocampo in Buenos Aires, an exciting and rewarding experience.

While there, I discussed with her the possibility of an exchange of letters, as you suggested, and she expressed interest in arranging this through photocopies. She has quite a few letters from Gabriela Mistral covering a period of about twenty years.

I would like to discuss this with you at some length. Is there any chance you may be in New York City in the next few weeks? If not, I shall either write you in more detail or try to get out your way before too long. Since classes start this month, my schedule is tight. In any event, do let me know what you prefer.

I found Victoria quite well and active for her years. She continues to write daily and is, of course, fascinating to be around. She sends you her warm regards - as do I.

Sincerely,

Doris
