Dear Miss Daves:

Thank you for your letter of April 13th. No, I haven't sent Aguilar anything yet but the letters of which you have a copy. The following is the history of this third edition: :

April 15, 1963 - my letter to Aguilar saying that I would like to send them an appendix that would contain notes on variants that would make this edition a critical edition.

May 3, 1963 - Aguilar's letter to me saying that the rate at which the edition was selling would necessitate another edition in the first half of 1963, that they are interested in my appendix and would like to see the manuscript and be informed of my price for this MS.

April 3, 1964 - my letter to Aguilar of which you have a copy. It was between the April 15th letter and the April 3rd letter that Doris informed me of the need of a new contract, and her plans for this third edition which you explain in the last paragraph of your letter of April 13th. Since a year has elapsed since my first letter, and Aguilar has not received my manuscript, I wrote to them to remind them of it and to say I still had the intention of sending it to them. The preparation of income taxes has cut into this time so that it is not finished yet but since there is to be no change from page 1 to page 799, once the contract with you is signed, Aguilar can begin the preparation of the third edition without my part which is an addenda only.

I certainly won't send them any part of my manuscript until I hear from you that you have the new contract in hand.

With sincere best wishes,

Margaret Bates
