Professor Macuchin Macbride,
University of California,
Westwood, Los Angeles, California.

Dear Professor Macbride:

Since my arrival in this region I have very much wanted to visit you, but my chief occupation has been to buy a house and after that to try to find someone to help me in my work.

I very much wish to see you and your wife, and I allow myself to invite you here, as my precarious health keeps me confined. My telephone is Monrovia 3311, and if your reply is favorable, we could see each other either next week or the week after.

Please be so kind as to telephone me either in Spanish or in French.

I am grateful to you, as for a personal service, for your magnificent book about my country; its criticisms I think have been very beneficial to us.

Yours sincerely,

Gabriela Mistral
