LIVERIGHT

3/7/72

Dear Doris,

I found the list of where books had been sent - Mexico, Uruguay, New York (Red O'Gorman), California - one copy each place; London - two copies. And that was all. I remember O'Gorman simply because I already knew his name and remembered your speaking of sending him a copy for possible review somewhere. I'm awfully sorry I just can't remember to whom the Mexico copy was addressed. I believe it was sent to Mexico City, but I'm not even certain of that.

Sorry too if you didn't mean to send them by air, but it was that or sea mail, which (pre-Christmas) meant four to five weeks, and as there was a dock strike in Britain, it meant longer there.

I've confirmed with John for the 13th. And I await the story with much eagerness.
