Dear Mrs. Williams:

I am writing to you at the suggestion of Marguerite Young and Frances Steloff. They thought you would be interested in including the works of the late Nobel Prize winner from Chile, Gabriela Mistral, in your series of poetry programs.

An important selection of Gabriela Mistral's poetry is being published this June by The Johns Hopkins Press. This volume is a bilingual edition, edited and translated by myself, with special woodcuts by Antonio Frasconi, and is the first comprehensive selection of her poetry to appear in the English language.

I hope it will be possible to include Gabriela in your program of poetry readings. This could be in English or, if you like, in both English and Spanish. I myself could do the readings, or could offer an informal lecture on her life and works in conjunction with the readings. This type of program is something I have done often as I have lectured for a number of years throughout Latin America on this author's life and works, under the auspices of the Department of State, as well as in many universities here in the United States. On the other hand, you might prefer the straight readings.

Enclosed is some advance material on the book, as well as some information about myself. I would be very happy to send you an advance copy of the book if you are interested in the program. I look forward to hearing from you.

Sincerely yours,

Doris Dana
