Dear Jane:

Is there an article for you in this material -- from a woman's angle -- or whatever?

This new book is creating a big stir in the literary world as you can see from the enclosed clips. I'm also enclosing older clips from Time and from Life Español to give you more background.

Gabriela Mistral ended her formal schooling at the age of eleven, then went on to win the Nobel Prize for Literature! - and became a leading figure in education and an internationally known fighter for human rights.

If you want to follow up - phone Doris Dana at (516) - 537-0041. Her address is Box 784, Bridgehampton, New York 11932. She's got loads of photographs, etc.

Best,

Margit
(Varga)

P.S. When you are through with this material, please send it down to Morgue for files.
