Dear Henry:

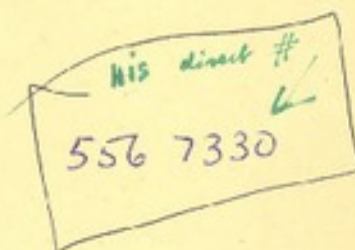

Here is some material pertaining to the John Hopkins Press publication of SELECTED POEMS OF GABRIELA MISTRAL. It's probably more than you'll care to read, but please do scan it because it will, I hope, confirm my suggestion that there is a good story in the personality and life of Gabriela Mistral, and in the fact that publication of her work in the English-speaking world was deliberately postponed for many years, until the time when the ambitious translation plans could be realized.

Doris Dana is a most personable and articulate person; a talk with her could yield some interesting aspect to the Mistral story.

Best,

Joan Davies/cs
