Dear Doris:

I owe apologies to you and the Press. They did call me up and asked if I could review Gabriela's book for the Times. Unfortunately, the Times staff has changed so completely that I know practically nobody there, and I am not reviewing any more. Alas, I can't even tell you who would give the book major consideration there.

I am terribly sorry about this and also about the fact that I shall be in Washington on May 17th and not able to go to the celebration for the book at La Librería. I hope it is a lovely party and that the book gets fine reviews. Congratulations to you for accomplishing the difficult job of translating poetry.

Cordially yours,

Mildred Adams
(Mrs. W. Houston Kenyon, Jr.)
