Gentlemen:

Miss Gabriela Mistral has asked me to write to you concerning her account with your publishing company.

As you probably know, after Miss Mistral returned to America from Sweden in 1945, she was in a very critical state of illness for a few years. When she recovered sufficiently, she came to Mexico at the invitation of the Mexican government, and since then has been traveling in this country rather extensively. For these reasons she feels that possibly letters to her from your publishing company have been lost en route.

Since she now has a stable address, she would greatly appreciate your sending her a complete statement of all royalties accumulated in the past and now owing to her in her account with your firm.

Her permanent address is as follows:

Apartado # 21
Jalapa, Veracruz
Mexico.

I am writing this letter to you in the capacity of Miss Mistral's literary agent, and she confirms the request with her signature inscribed below.

Both Miss Mistral and I thank you most sincerely for your attention in this matter.

Very truly yours,

X

Doris Dana (Agent)
