Dear Magda:

At Christmas time I received a very attractive card with a brief but welcome message from you, and it was good to learn that we may see you here in the United States some time this year. It would seem that your travels continue to be extensive and I take this as a good omen of your fortunes.

All goes reasonably well with the Leonards these days. Dottie, our daughter whom you may remember, was married two years ago and on January 3 became the mother of a boy, much to her great satisfaction. Dorothea and I try to grow old gracefully, and these past three weeks between semesters we escaped to Florida from a Michigan ^{lover}
