It is not all good news, however. In 2007, the World Bank reported an increase in the share of the population living on less than $2 a day in 100 of the 147 countries it tracked, to 1.3 billion, up from 1.2 billion a decade earlier. In addition, the growth of a middle class in Asia, the U.S. and Europe has helped the global middle class grow to 2.5 billion, but it is still only 40 percent of the world's population. The World Bank also reported that the number of people living on less than $2 a day in 2007 was 1.3 billion, up from 1.2 billion in 1997. The World Bank also reported that the number of people living on less than $2 a day in 2007 was 1.3 billion, up from 1.2 billion in 1997.
