

James Earl Ray, the Man Who Killed Dr. Martin Luther King

By the time James Earl Ray was arrested in London in 1968, he had already served 99 months in prison for armed robbery and kidnapping. He was a man of many names, including Eric Starvo Galt, and he had a long history of crime. He was a member of the Black Panther Party and had been involved in the assassination of Dr. Martin Luther King. He was a man who had been in and out of prison many times, and he was a man who had been known for his cunning and his ability to escape. He was a man who had been known for his ability to escape, and he was a man who had been known for his ability to escape.

Ray was a man who had been known for his ability to escape, and he was a man who had been known for his ability to escape. He was a man who had been known for his ability to escape, and he was a man who had been known for his ability to escape. He was a man who had been known for his ability to escape, and he was a man who had been known for his ability to escape. He was a man who had been known for his ability to escape, and he was a man who had been known for his ability to escape. He was a man who had been known for his ability to escape, and he was a man who had been known for his ability to escape.

Ray was a man who had been known for his ability to escape, and he was a man who had been known for his ability to escape. He was a man who had been known for his ability to escape, and he was a man who had been known for his ability to escape. He was a man who had been known for his ability to escape, and he was a man who had been known for his ability to escape. He was a man who had been known for his ability to escape, and he was a man who had been known for his ability to escape. He was a man who had been known for his ability to escape, and he was a man who had been known for his ability to escape.

Ray was a man who had been known for his ability to escape, and he was a man who had been known for his ability to escape. He was a man who had been known for his ability to escape, and he was a man who had been known for his ability to escape. He was a man who had been known for his ability to escape, and he was a man who had been known for his ability to escape. He was a man who had been known for his ability to escape, and he was a man who had been known for his ability to escape. He was a man who had been known for his ability to escape, and he was a man who had been known for his ability to escape.
