

WINE 105

THE HISTORY OF WINE

The history of wine is a long and fascinating one, with evidence of its production and consumption dating back to the Neolithic period. The earliest known wine-making techniques were developed in the Taurus and Zagros mountains regions, where grapes were crushed and fermented in animal skins. From there, the practice spread to the Mediterranean and eventually to the rest of the world.

In ancient Greece, wine was a central part of daily life and was used in religious rituals and social gatherings. The Romans, in turn, introduced wine-making to the British Isles and the rest of Europe. The Middle Ages saw the rise of monastic wine-making, with monks playing a key role in the development of viticulture and winemaking techniques.

The Renaissance period brought a renewed interest in wine, with the discovery of the Americas leading to the introduction of new grape varieties and winemaking techniques. The 19th century saw the rise of the wine trade, with the development of the wine press and the establishment of wine merchants and wine critics.

The 20th century has seen a dramatic increase in wine production and consumption, with the development of new wine-making techniques and the emergence of wine as a major industry. The rise of wine tourism and the popularity of wine festivals have also contributed to the growth of the wine industry.

Today, wine is a global phenomenon, with a wide variety of styles and flavors available to consumers. The wine industry continues to evolve, with new technologies and techniques being developed and adopted. As the world's population grows and the demand for wine increases, the industry is expected to continue to expand and thrive.

Inter Nos [artículo] Enrique Neiman.

Libros y documentos

AUTORÍA

Neiman, Enrique, 1920-2004

FECHA DE PUBLICACIÓN

1994

FORMATO

Artículo

DATOS DE PUBLICACIÓN

Inter Nos [artículo] Enrique Neiman.

FUENTE DE INFORMACIÓN

Biblioteca Nacional Digital

INSTITUCIÓN

Biblioteca Nacional

UBICACIÓN

Avenida Libertador Bernardo O'Higgins 651, Santiago, Región Metropolitana, Chile