

Article

Using Social Networks to Address the Needs of Homeless Veterans: A Case Study

David A. Reardon, PhD, and Robert M. L. Bell, PhD

Abstract Homeless veterans are a vulnerable population with unique needs. This article describes a case study of a homeless veteran who was referred to a community-based organization for help. The study found that the veteran's social network was a key factor in his ability to access services and resources. The study also found that the veteran's social network was a key factor in his ability to access services and resources.

Homeless veterans are a vulnerable population with unique needs. This article describes a case study of a homeless veteran who was referred to a community-based organization for help. The study found that the veteran's social network was a key factor in his ability to access services and resources. The study also found that the veteran's social network was a key factor in his ability to access services and resources.

The study found that the veteran's social network was a key factor in his ability to access services and resources. The study also found that the veteran's social network was a key factor in his ability to access services and resources.

Aprendiendo y enseñando con estilo [artículo].

Libros y documentos

FECHA DE PUBLICACIÓN

1996

FORMATO

Artículo

DATOS DE PUBLICACIÓN

Aprendiendo y enseñando con estilo [artículo].

FUENTE DE INFORMACIÓN

Biblioteca Nacional Digital

INSTITUCIÓN

Biblioteca Nacional

UBICACIÓN

Avenida Libertador Bernardo O'Higgins 651, Santiago, Región Metropolitana, Chile