

Some time ago, I was asked by a friend to write a short article on the subject of the "new" English. He had in mind the new English which has been developed by the English-speaking peoples in Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, Rhodesia, Malaya, and elsewhere. This is a language which is based on the English of Great Britain, but which has been modified by the influence of other languages, particularly French, German, Dutch, and others. It is a language which is used in Canada, Australia, New Zealand, Rhodesia, Malaya, and elsewhere, and it is a language which is spoken by millions of people.
