22. Results of the qualitative approach are summarized in comparison to the first hypothesis in Table 1. The results of the first hypothesis are summarized in Table 2. The results of the second hypothesis are summarized in Table 3.

Dr. Hermann Hagedorn and his group have spent the last fifteen years in Germany, devoted to the development of a new type of laser. The laser is a device that produces a beam of light that is very intense and very narrow. It is used in many applications, such as in the medical field for surgery and in the industrial field for cutting and welding. The laser is also used in the field of communication for transmitting information over long distances. The laser is a very important device in many fields of science and technology.

The authors do not intend to suggest that the use of the term "cognitive" is a new trend in the literature. The term has been used for many years in the field of psychology. However, the use of the term "cognitive" in the title of this paper is intended to highlight the focus of the research on the cognitive aspects of the phenomenon.

This review has demonstrated that the Staphylococcus aureus bacteriophage, ϕ 80, has a characteristic, narrow host range, capable of infecting only strains of S. aureus that are susceptible to the bacteriophage. The study of bacteriophage ϕ 80 infection was limited to bacteriophage adsorption, but the bacteriophage adsorption assay was used to demonstrate that bacteriophage ϕ 80 infects the strains of S. aureus that are susceptible to the bacteriophage. The bacteriophage adsorption assay was used to demonstrate that bacteriophage ϕ 80 infects the strains of S. aureus that are susceptible to the bacteriophage.
