Polymerase (and its associated primase) is present in the cell at concentrations of 10^{-10} to 10^{-11} M. In contrast, the concentration of the template is 10^{-3} to 10^{-4} M. The ratio of template to polymerase is 10^7 to 10^8 . This suggests that each template molecule is used by many polymerase molecules. The template is not consumed in the reaction.
