Dear Doris:

Dancers

We have a bite from Holland. A publisher there has perfected plans for the publication of a series devoted to literature ~~for the~~ Nobel Prize. The offer is a very low one and we are continuing our correspondence; but, meanwhile, will you let me know whether any of Dona Gabriela's work has ever been translated into Dutch.

The publishers are thinking of a 500-page volume devoted to three authors - G. Mistral, Frederic Mistral and Sully Prudhomme; they have another volume in preparation devoted to Bergson, Bucken and Russell. They want to include poems, prose, letters, lectures, etc. They mention specifically that the lectures should not be overlooked; were there any, and do you have a record of them?

With best regards,

Yours,

Joan
