Dear Sister Rose Aquin,

I have just returned from a long stay in Europe and am in the throes of trying to catch up with a vast amount of correspondence that has accumulated. For this reason forgive the brevity and haste with which this letter is written. I am happy for you if your book is to be published, although I don't know what your thesis is, nor have I seen it.

About the quotations you wish to use, of course I will be most happy to give you written authorization providing they do not exceed the usual limits considered "quotations". Could you give me an idea as to this matter? If there are any that exceed a phrase or sentence or two, these should be copied and sent to me. What I am saying is that, for instance, a whole poem or the bulk of any prose article cannot just be "quoted", so please send me the copy of any of the lengthier quotations and then I will be able to send you the proper letter of authorization.

Dear Sister Rose, thank you for your good wishes and for your prayers. I too send you my affection and prayers.

Doris Dana

P.S: Please send this information to Pound Ridge. Though I will not be located here for a while yet, I will be receiving my mail.
