Dear Doris:

Richard N. Clark of Houghton Mifflin writes me as follows:

"You will perhaps remember that we reprinted in a collection entitled THIRTY-SIX SPANISH POEMS "La manca" by Gabriela Mistral. Now Caedmon Records of New York wishes to make a recording of the poems in this collection. May we have your permission to record this poem along with the rest?

I know from the file that we used a version of the poem which the author did not wish to have republished, but you were good enough to let us go ahead in the circumstances. We can, of course, exclude it from the recorded version, but very much hope that you can see your way clear to permitting us to use it."

I do not seem to remember this business -- was this arranged before my time? Anyhow, I think we should leave the poem on the recording of the collection if at all possible, because I do not think that substitutions can be made in a deal covering the entire collection, as published.

Mr. Clark says nothing about money but I shall certainly ask him as soon as I know whether we can give him permission to use "La manca".

Love,

Miss Doris Dana
