Dear Boris:

Your letter from Panama was a relief. Papers had been talking of a b. howling around Florida and I hadn't the slightest idea of how long it would take you to get to the Pacific. As far as go's not knowing whether she was in a hotel, boat, or train, she was the same way on the Cuban trip. . . she was usually in a baroo (being pessimistic). In fact she said she had the sensation of going from caves (berths in boats and trains) to palaces (Dulce Maria's) she wasn't sure where she would find herself the next morning.

Well, you're in clover with Gorki and a Russian Captain. He is really full of zest (Gorki. . . I mean, and I hope the Russian Captain too).

Kileen Burning drove me to the Erie Station after leaving ^{from} the boat. I stopped in N.Y. to see my sister on the way back to Washington. . . had my little list of things to do. . . which never became a list of things done because, as usual, my hinges became all unscrewed in the stupid horrible and after lunch I was on the train for Washington with what a sense of relief! I
