For instance, when a person is asked to perform a task, the person may be asked to perform the task in a way that is consistent with the task's purpose. For example, if a person is asked to perform a task that requires a high level of precision, the person may be asked to perform the task in a way that is consistent with the task's purpose. This is a common way to ensure that the person is performing the task in a way that is consistent with the task's purpose.
