During the month of October, 1863, I was engaged in the construction of a bridge across the river at the mouth of the creek, about one-half mile from the village. The bridge was to consist of four arches, each 15 feet wide, and 10 feet high, with a roadway 10 feet wide, and 12 feet high above the water. The bridge was to be built of timber, and was to be completed in about two weeks. The work was to be done by a crew of ten men, and the cost of the bridge was to be $1,000. He goes on to say that the whole process of education consists in this reduction of the individual to a minimum of self-assertion, and that it is the right of the teacher to do this.
Thus we find such sayings as "I am the master of the house" - the teacher is the master of his class, who is to be regarded as a part of him all the time. This is the way in which the teacher is to be regarded.

the day before, and had all the rest of the morning. When we got the boat back from the river, he had a large number of people gathered around him. He told them, and they all agreed, that it was the will of the Lord that they should go to the river, and that they should be baptized.

the first time in our history, in which the people of the United States have been compelled to go to war with their neighbors, and to do so in defense of their country. We have done this, not because we desire to interfere in the internal affairs of any other nation, but because we have been compelled to do so by the aggressions of our neighbors, who have attacked us, and sought to overthrow our government.
