And, just to remind you that I am not a scientist, the group that really produced the results on Staphylococcus aureus in the 1960s was the Staphylococcus aureus group at the University of California, San Francisco. They did not believe in an official set of standards.

It is also a common mistake to think that the only way to avoid the problems of the first two methods is to use a third method, the method of least squares. This method is also a special case of the method of maximum likelihood, and it is subject to the same problems as the other two methods.
