

STATE OF THE STATE

As Governor, I have the honor to present to you the 1998-1999 State of the State Report. This report is a summary of the work of the State of Tennessee during the past year. It is a report to you, the people of Tennessee, on the progress of the state and on the work of the state government.

THE STATE OF TENNESSEE: A REPORT TO THE PEOPLE

The State of Tennessee is a great state. It is a state of opportunity, of growth, and of progress. It is a state that is proud of its heritage and its traditions, but it is also a state that is looking to the future and to the challenges that lie ahead.

In the past year, we have made significant progress in many areas. We have improved our education system, we have strengthened our economy, and we have enhanced our infrastructure. We have also made significant progress in the area of public safety and justice. We have a long way to go, but we are confident that we can continue to make progress in the years ahead.

One of the most important challenges we face is the need to improve our education system. We must ensure that every child in Tennessee has access to a high-quality education. We must also ensure that our education system is able to meet the needs of the 21st century.

Another important challenge we face is the need to strengthen our economy. We must create more jobs and opportunities for our citizens. We must also ensure that our economy is able to withstand the challenges of the global market.

We must also ensure that our infrastructure is up to date and that it is able to support the needs of our citizens. We must invest in our roads, bridges, and public transit system. We must also ensure that our water and sewer systems are safe and reliable.

Finally, we must ensure that our public safety and justice system is able to protect our citizens and to provide a fair and just legal system. We must invest in our law enforcement and judicial system. We must also ensure that our public safety system is able to respond to the needs of our citizens.

I am confident that we can continue to make progress in the years ahead. We have the talent and the resources to do so. We have the support of our citizens. We have the support of our state government. We have the support of our federal government. We have the support of our neighbors. We have the support of our world.
